PHILIP EMBURY. METCH OF THE LIPE OF THE FOUNDER OF AMERICAN

METHODISM One hundred years ago, Philip Embury, the modest local preacher, who founded American Method-lam, died suddenly in Washington County, N. Y. The

through a plain local preacher, and " skillful carpenter

ling, he corolled them into a class and mot them weekly. Shortly afterward he organized two classes, one of cach sex. Embury's house, upon Barrack-st., now Park-place, soon became too small by accommodate the people, and a larger room was hired mear the barrack. Congregations mereased, and the "riggins-loft," at No. 120 Williams, was hired, its by 60 feet. Four months afterward, Capt. Thomas Webb of the British Army came to worship at the "riggins-loft," arrayed in military costume and bearing henorable evidence of distinguished services. After heartily engaging in the services, at the case he introduced himself as a "brother beloved," He, too, was a spiritual son of John Wesley. Three of Wend's comrades in the British army were among the British decomposity of the services as a preacher, and before two years had clapsed oid Johnst Methodist Episcopial Church, called for a long time "Wesley Chapel," was opened for worship.

The need of a chapel, we have the asset alled their places of worship, became a sore necessity. Barbara Heck had anticipated thus, and being a woman of deep petry, sie made it a matter of prayer, until she felt inwardly the asset and a plain edifice erected. Webb being under good retiring pay, and feeling the want of a building, heartily supported Embury and the society an economical plan by which ground could be secured and a plain edifice erected. Webb being under good retiring pay, and feeling the want of a building, heartily supported Embury and the society, and the work was undertaken. Both were trustees. They first leased the site on Johnst. In 1768, and in 170 it was purchased. The citizens of New-York social life—the Livingstons, the distinguished historian of Methodism, gives the names of some of the subscribers, who occupied the highest ranks of New-York social life—the Livingstons, Duanes, Delanceys, Laights, Stuyvesants, Lispenards.

The enapel was built of stone, faced with plaster, 62 by 42 feet, costing £200 to £80. To come within the requirements of the law for Dissenters, it and the area in the front at one time. It was named "Wesley Chapel," the first in the world that bore that title.

Embury, beside being the pastor, became the first trustee, first treasurer, first class-leader, and first preacher. The trustees were Philip Embury, William Lupton, Charles White, Richard Sause, Henry Newton, Paul Heek, Thomas Taylor, and Thomas Webb. Capt. Webb, having kindred flying at Jamaica, L. L., formed a society there, and then passed through New-Jersey and formed societies at different points. Thence he entered Philadelphia and became the founder of Methodism in that city, first preaching in a sail-loft and founding a class of seven members in 1763. He continued to preach more or less until 1769, when Wesley's first itinerants, Pilmoer and Boardman, arrived. He aided in the purchase of the first church, Old "St. George's." He also went to Delaware and introduced Methodism. In 1772 he went back to England, and returned to this/country again in 1773, with Shadford and Rankin, two ministers sent by Mr. Wesley, remaining in this country and the Revolution, when he again returned to Europe. Wakeley's valuable history, entitled "Lost Chapters," supplies some interesting details of the other members of the first Board of Trustees. Paul Heek, who married Harbara Ruckie, came to New-York in 1760, and in 1770 or 1771 removed to Camden, N. Y., the town of Embury's home when he left the city, and in 1770, went to Canda in 1804. William Lupton came from England as quartermaster under George II., in 1763. He was in the war with Capt. Webb, who was his commanding officer. He married a relation of Gen. Schuyler, died in 1796, and was interred in Johnst. (Wesley Chapel). Charles White came from Dublin in 1767. Being's sopporter of the claims of King George, in 1783 he removed to Nova Scotia. In 1786 he went to reside at Lexington, Ky., and died a few years afterward. Blabop Asbury found him and visited him. Richard Sause was the first who boarded Mr. Wesley's American missionaries. Henry Newton, an English

Agreeth was taken up by Boardman he settled in Cambon, Washington County, N.Y. In tais place he preached and organized a society. Here he held for a time the office of justice of the peace. He died suddenly in his meadow. At the time of his death he was about 15 years old. He died as he had lived, "greatly beloved and much lamented," says having the buried upon the farm of his friend Peter Switzen, about seven miles from Ashgrove, where the remains rested 57 vears. In 1822 they were removed to the Methodist burying ground in Ashgrove and a marble tablet placed to perpetuate his memory, reading that he was the first to set in motion a train of measures which resulted in the founding of John-st. church, the cradle of Methodism, and the introduction of a system which has beautified the beautified, N. Y., and the fine monument just erected will be "unvalled" on Monday next, with addresses from Hishop Simpson, the Rev. Dr. J. B. Wakeley, author of "Lost Chapters," etc., and the Rev. Thomas T. Tasker, sr., of Philadelphia, who will speak in behalf of the local preachers. Hishop Janes will take part in the exercises, and Bishops Bowman and Wyles are expected to be present. These dedicatory services will take piace in connection with the session of the National Local Preachers' Association. It is said that a grandson of Embury, named Fisher, was in New York in 1853, at a church meeting in Bedford-st. A number of his brotter David Embury's descendents were living in New York and Brooklyn 10 years are. Wakeley in "Lost Chapters" asy that Mrs. Emma C. Embury, the authoress, is the wife of a descendant of his; also Daniel Embury. President of the Atiantie Bank in Brooklyn.

In 1770 a pursonage, called "The Preachers' House," was erecled, to connect with the church editied up by borrowing from the members. In 1817 the church editied was taken down and a new one built. Subseque Nothing is to be answed to make its again. It is the property of the whole church and control of the highest law-making body, and that has power to "mend the discipline."

The most interesting question before the Synod was a proposition to unite with the Southern and Reformed Church. A long discussion was had with Dr. Brooks of St. Louis, the most prominent opnoser of the propesition. A vote was finally reached late last night, and resulted in 47 yeas to 32 mays. Dr. Brooks then asked the 32 opponents of the union to meet in his church this morning to determine what further action should be taken. The meeting was held, and it was decided to take no action until after the Presbyterians have voted on seuding commissioners to the next meeting of the Southern General Assembly. unite with the Southern and Reformed Church. Misself D. Peabody, of Cambridge, Mass.

Miss E. P. Peabody of Cambridge, Mass., gave a short address at the Church of the New Jerusalem, in Thirty-fifth-st., last evening, upon Frocoell's Kin-dergarten system of instruction. Miss Peabody treated of only one phase of the subject-the relation of the of only one phase of the subject—the relation of the parent to the kindergarten. The nursery must lay the broad foundation for noble character. The kindergarten aids the nursery in this work by taking the child for a few hours each day and furnishing it wish child's sceity. There must be a thorough understanding between the mother and the kindergartner. Nowhere has the system met with so triumphant success as at Hamburg, and this is because it has nowhere else been so thoroughly appreciated by the mether as supplementary to her instruction. An effort is about to be made to establish a kindergarten school, partly in connection with the society of this church. Children between 34 and 7 or a years of age are to be admitted. The Rev. Chauncey Giles has the matter in charge.
